SSSS INAUGURAL SEXUAL SCIENCE SUMMER RESEARCH INSTITUTE

Friday & Saturday – July 27 & 28, 2018

Widener University
Leslie C. Quick Jr. Center
1304 Walnut Street
Chester, Pennsylvania 19013 (USA)

Co-Chairs:
Brooke Wells, Ph.D.
Widener University

Terry Humphreys, Ph.D.
Trent University
Friday, July 27, 2018

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Event</th>
<th>Room</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>8:00 am - 9:00 am</td>
<td>Registration &amp; Continental Breakfast</td>
<td>#108</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| 9:00 am - 10:30 am | Welcoming Remarks & Opening Workshop
The Ethical Slut Redux: Contemporary Dilemmas in Sexuality Research
Nicolas Grosskopf, Ed.D., MCHES, CUNY York University | #108     |
| 10:30 am - 10:45 am | Break                                                                                   |          |
| 10:45 am - 12:15 pm | Breakout Workshops
Session 1: Preserving Power by Managing Missingness - How to Use Multiple Imputation for Missing Data
Shayna Skakoon-Sparling, Ph.D., University of Guelph
Session 2: Social Justice in Research Methods
Sofia Jawed-Wessel, Ph.D., University of Omaha | #102, #104 |
| 12:15 pm - 1:00 pm | Lunch (on your own)                                                                     |          |
| 1:00 pm - 3:30 pm  | Group Workshop
Transparent and Reproducible Sexual Science: Rationale and Strategies for Increasing the Credibility of Sexual Science
John Sakaluk, Ph.D., University of Victoria | #108     |
| 3:30 pm - 3:45 pm  | Break                                                                                   |          |
| 3:45 pm - 5:45 pm  | Group Workshop
Research on Sexual Coercion and Sexual Consent: A Discussion of Challenges and Recommendations
Charlene Muehlenhard, Ph.D., University of Kansas | #108     |

Saturday, July 28, 2018

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Time</th>
<th>Event</th>
<th>Room</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>8:00 am - 9:00 am</td>
<td>Registration &amp; Continental Breakfast</td>
<td>#108</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| 9:00 am - 12:00 pm | Breakout Workshops
Session 1: Conducting Rigorous Meta-Analyses: Contemporary Strategies and Tools
John Sakaluk, Ph.D., University of Victoria
Session 2: Life History Research Methods in Sexuality and Gender Research
Miguel Munoz-LaBoy, Ph.D., Temple University | #102, #104 |
| 12:00 pm - 1:15 pm | Lunch (on your own)                                                                     |          |
| 1:15 pm - 2:45 pm  | Breakout Workshops
Session 1: Logistic and Count Regression: The Generalized Linear Model Applied to Outcomes Commonly Observed in Sexual Science
Tyrel Starks, Ph.D., Hunter College
Session 2: Taking Sex Research to the Qualitative Realm – Conducting Focus Groups on Sexuality Topics
Shayna Skakoon-Sparling, Ph.D., University of Guelph | #102, #108 |
| 2:45 pm - 4:15 pm  | Group Workshop
Management and Analysis of Survey Data: the National Survey of Sexual Health and Behavior
Tsung-chieh (Jane) Fu, Ph.D., Sc.M., Indiana University | #108     |
| 4:15 pm - 4:30 pm  | Break                                                                                   |          |
| 4:30 pm - 6:00 pm  | Group Workshop
Connecting Research to Policy Advocacy
Sofia Jawed-Wessel, Ph.D., University of Omaha | #108     |
| 6:00 pm          | Group Closing                                                                           | #108     |
INTRODUCING THE SUMMER RESEARCH INSTITUTE PRESENTERS .....

Nicholas Grosskopf, Ed.D, MCHES is Associate Professor and Coordinator of the Public Health Program in the Department of Health & Human Performance York College of The City University of New York (CUNY). He has experience working in community health settings, specifically in program/policy planning, monitoring and evaluation with a focus in sexual health promotion. In the past he has worked with the Center for HIV Educational Studies & Training, the Bureau of HIV/AIDS at the NYC Department of Health & Mental Hygiene, and the NYC Department of Education. He holds a joint appointment in the Department of Community Health & Social Sciences at the CUNY Graduate School of Public Health. His scholarly interests include the intersection of health and technology, health equity and health policy implications for sexual and gender minorities as well as human participant research ethics as he serves as Chair of CUNY University-Integrated Institutional Review Boards (UI-IRB) #1 & #3. He is also Co-Director and Co-Founder of the Collaborative Research Group on Health Policy & Promotion + the UrbanHealth Lab at York College.

Shayna Skakoon-Sparling, Ph.D. received her degree in Applied Social Psychology from the University of Windsor and is currently working as a postdoctoral research fellow with the University of Guelph and the Ontario HIV Treatment Network. Shayna’s research has primarily focused on sexual decision-making and sexual negotiation - in particular, her work has explored how condom negotiation occurs among new couples and how sexual arousal impacts decision-making, risk-taking, and judgment. Shayna has experience teaching a variety of courses including Couple and Family Relationships, Health Psychology, and Advanced Research Methods and Statistics. She has been a member of SSSS since 2011 and currently serves as the editor of the Sexual Science Newsletter. When she’s not hard at work, Shayna enjoys bicycling around the city, reading fiction (especially a good sci-fi or murder mystery), catching up on pop culture, and spending time with her family and friends.

Sofia Jawed-Wessel, Ph.D., M.P.H. teaches and generates new knowledge in the area of public health through scientific inquiry. Her research focuses on understanding the sexual health of women and couples as they transition into parenthood by documenting sexual behaviors, sexual function, relationship adjustment, and sexual changes during pregnancy and after childbirth. The long-term goal of her research trajectory is to understand how women’s intimate relationships are impacted by sexual and maternal objectification. Dr. Jawed-Wessel’s teachings utilize a sex-positive and pleasure inclusive approach to providing medically accurate, comprehensive sexuality education to undergraduate students as well as in the local Omaha community. She teaches graduate level courses such as Research Methods, Health Behavior Theory, and Leadership and Advocacy. Dr. Jawed-Wessel also fights for women’s rights and reproductive justice through her research and community service. She has provided expert testimony for the Nebraska Unicameral, the Nebraska School Board of Education, and the Omaha Public School Board of Education. She has successfully organized and argued in favor of comprehensive sex education in Omaha Public Schools and fights against restrictive anti-choice legislation in Nebraska. Dr. Jawed-Wessel is an Assistant Professor in the School of Health and Kinesiology at the University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNO) and the Associate Director of the Midlands Sexual Health Research Collaborative. Dr. Jawed-Wessel also holds a joint appointment with the Women and Gender Studies program at UNO and a courtesy appointment in the College of Public Health at the University of Nebraska Medical Center. Dr. Jawed-Wessel holds both a Master of Science in Public Health (MPH) degree and a Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) degree in Health Behavior from the School of Public Health at Indiana University Bloomington. Dr. Jawed-Wessel is a 2017 Ten Outstanding Young Omahans recipient as well as a 2017 Tribute to Women Honoree. She also received the 2017 UNO Chancellor’s Commission on the Status of Women Outstanding Achievement Award and the 2015 Mary Anne Lamanna Excellence in Women and Gender Studies Award. She recently earned “Best Senior Research Poster” for her work discussing the role of attitudes, sexual behavior patterns, and gender on sexual satisfaction among pregnant couples at the 2017 International Academy of Sex Research Annual Meeting. Her 2016 TEDxOmaha talk “The lies we tell pregnant women” was promoted by TED.com and has been viewed over 3 million times across all platforms.

John Sakaluk, Ph.D. received his degree in Social Psychology (with a minor in Quantitative Psychology) from the University of Kansas. He then completed a SSHRC Postdoctoral Fellowship at the University of Toronto Mississauga. He now works as an Assistant Professor in the Department of Psychology at the University of Victoria, where he teaches undergraduate and graduate courses on the psychology of sexuality, research methods, and statistical analyses. As a methodologist, Dr. Sakaluk is passionate about the use of transparent and reproducible research practices, and the use of advanced statistical analyses such as forms of latent variable modeling and meta-analysis. He is also increasingly interested in issues of meta-theory, and the intersection of philosophy of science and the selection of statistical modeling methods. His methodological scholarship has been published in both sexuality and psychology outlets, such as Journal of Sex Research, Journal of Experimental Social Psychology, and Perspectives on Psychological Science. He currently serves as a statistical consultant for the Journal of Sex Research, and the Canadian Journal of Human Sexuality.
Charlene L. Muehlenhard, Ph.D. is a professor at the University of Kansas, with a joint appointment in the Department of Psychology and the Department of Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies. Her research explores the constructions of sexuality, gender, consent, coercion, and the intersections of these concepts. Education: She earned her B.A. from the University of Cincinnati in 1973, with a double major in Psychology and Mathematics. She earned her Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin in 1981, in the Clinical Psychology Program. Honors: She is a Fellow of the Society for the Scientific Study of Sexuality and of the American Psychological Association (in Division 9, the Society for the Psychological Study of Social Issues; Division 35, the Society for the Psychology of Women; and Division 44, the Society for the Psychology of Sexual Orientation and Gender Diversity). She has won the several awards for research (the Alfred C. Kinsey Award, the Society for the Scientific Study of Sexuality’s Award for Distinguished Scientific Achievement, the Hugo G. Beigel Research Award, and the John Money Award) and for teaching (the William T. Kemper Fellowship for Teaching Excellence). She is a past President of the Society for the Scientific Study of Sexuality.

Miguel Muñoz-Laboy, Dr.P.H. is an Associate Professor of Social Work at Temple University. Dr. Muñoz-Laboy has a doctoral degree in public health from Columbia University. His primary areas of research are: examining the associations between sexual fluidity and determinants of sexual health for bisexual networks, Latinos (as) and/or groups involved with the criminal justice system; the intersections of masculinity with multiple forms of social oppressions (sexism, racism, heterosexism), and health-risk taking behavior; and, developing culturally-appropriate interventions to address HIV care, major depressive and substance use disorders among economically and socially marginalized populations. Dr. Muñoz-Laboy has been the principal or co-principal investigator for ten research studies. Recently, he completed two studies: Network determinants of risk among formerly incarcerated Latino men (SRC1MH078863-02, 2009-2011) and a mixed-methods 5-year NICHD-funded study entitled Gender, power and Latino men’s HIV risk (SR01HD056948-02; 2009-2014). Currently, he leads together with Dr. Laura Bamford of a 5-year intervention study, Clinica Bienestar: A Comprehensive Primary Care HIV Treatment Intervention for Latinos(as) with Severe Opioid Use Disorder in Philadelphia (grant # H97HA26504: 2013-2018). He has published over 70 articles, 10 book chapters and co-edited to two books.

Tyrel Starks, Ph.D. earned his degree in Clinical Psychology (with an emphasis in Child-Clinical Psychology) from Southern Illinois University Carbondale in 2009. He is an Associate Professor of Psychology at Hunter College and the Health Psychology and Clinical Science doctoral program at the Graduate Center of the City University of New York. Licensed in New York State, he serves as the Clinical Director of the Center for HIV Educational Studies and Training affiliated with Hunter College. Dr. Starks’ program of research is focused on understanding how primary sexual-romantic relationships shape health-related behaviors. He is the Primary Investigator on 3 currently funded awards from the National Institutes of Health focused on the development of interventions to reduce drug use and/or HIV risk among gay and bisexual men in relationships during emerging adulthood and adolescents. Dr. Starks is the author of more than 60 publications in peer reviewed journals and has broad experience in the use of quantitative statistics to study of health and sexuality related outcomes. He has taught statistics and research methods at the graduate level since 2012. Recently, he was appointed Associate Editor for Psychology of Sexual Orientation and Gender Diversity (published by APA).

Tsung-chieh (Jane) Fu, Ph.D. earned her degree in Epidemiology from the University of Washington in 2014 and a masters in Epidemiology and Infectious Diseases from Johns Hopkins University in 2009. She is currently working as a postdoctoral fellow with the Center for Sexual Health and Promotion at Indiana University and also serves as research coordinator/data manager for the National Survey of Sexual Health and Behavior, an on-going probability study of national scope, and many of the Center’s other sexual health studies. Her research interests include: the relationship between sexual behaviors and STI/STD prevention; factors associated with sexual pleasure, satisfaction, and orgasm; and methodological and measurement issues associated with sexual behaviors, condom use, and sexual orientation.

PLAN TO JOIN SSSS IN NOVEMBER .....
Thank you for attending the Summer Research Institute!